

Sustainable usage of peat – is it possible?

Nina Kinnunen

Brand, Communications and Digitalization Director

Kekkilä-BvB, Ratatie 11 A, FIN-01300 Vantaa

nina.kinnunen@kekila-bvb.com

The majority of horticultural food production in greenhouses is dependent on peat due to its optimal characteristics for plant growth. It has been calculated that the need for growing media in food production will rise 400% by the year 2050. The demand for peat will double and even higher growth rates are needed from other growing media materials. How to balance these societal needs with the needs of the planet in a way that has positive impacts for all?